

Question	Yes 😊	No 😞	Notes
Does the breeder have a kennel affix?			An affix means the breeders dogs can be identified easily
Does the breeder have a website or facebook group?			Check it out
Is the breeder licensed ?			A license is required if a breeder advertises as a business or sells more than two litters a year
Is the breeder a Kennel Club assured breeder?			While not essential Kennel club breeders are recommended by many organisations.
Are Both parents Kennel Club registered			This is an indication that your dogs parents are pedigree and is a must for any buyer.
Will the parents be viewable?			You should expect to see mum, dad is a bonus.
What is the coefficient of inbreeding for the litter?			Lower the better but should be less than 12.5% ideally below the breed average.
Will the Puppy be Kennel Club registered			This should be a yes even if you want 'just a pet'
Are the parents both hip scored			Preferred total score as low as possible perfect being 0/0 worse 53/53 below 12 is desirable
Are both parents Elbow scored			Score should ideally be 0 , 1 is accepted
Are both parents eye tested			Both parents should have a Clear eye test and a gonioscopy grade of 0-2, higher grades should be bred to lower.
Are the parents DNA tested Cerebellar Ataxia			One parent must test clear.
Are the parents tested for ECLE			One parent should test clear
Are the parents tested for the Longhaired Gene			One parent should test clear
Are the parents tested for HUU			One parent should test clear

Are the parents in general good health			Must be yes
Does the breeder have a socialisation plan			Must be yes
What food does the breeder intend to feed the litter			Good growth starts young good food is needed you can check out the food on www.allaboutdogfood.co.uk
Will the puppies follow a worming and flea program			Should be yes
Will the puppies be vet checked			Should be yes
Will the puppies be microchipped			Should be yes it's the law.
What age will the puppies be homed?			No earlier than 8 weeks
What is the overall cost any hidden extras?			Costs average £2000-£3000 any more or less should be investigated
Will I be receipted for the sale			Yes it is required should you ever need to claim on your insurance.
Will I receive ongoing support from the breeder			Should be yes